Says the Chico Record: Mr. Hazleton, a resident of Cettonwood, Tehama connty, came across a camp of Chinamen who were cutting lumber and were ex-cited over the discovery, in a hollow tree, of 13 rattlespakes, varying in size from one to three feet.

The Laramie (Wy. T.) Times says Lieutenant McCauley of the Third Cavairy, with two companies, were nearly frozen to death in the mountains, on the continental divide, near Bridger pass. They had no food or means of making a fire, the bushes being under the snow, and the wagon had been snowed in and left. The thermometer was 35 degrees balow zero.

Thursday last, says the Portland (Or.) Telegram, the excessive high waters burst Cowan's boom on Smith River, from the effects of which about $10,000 worth of logs were lost.

A portion of the Moss Landing wharf, in Monterey county (about 125 feet) was carried away during the violent wind storm of the 19th and 20th. It will be rebuilt at once. rebuilt at once.

One of the hottest regions on the earth is along the Persian Gulf, where little or no rain falls. At Bahrin, the arid abore has no fresh water, yet a the arid abore has no fresh water, yet a comparatively numerous population contrive to live there, thanks to the copious springs which break forth from the bottom of the sea. The fresh water is got by diving. The diver, sitting in his boat, winds a great goatskin bag around his left arm, the hand grasping its mouth; then takes in his right hand a heavy stone, to which is attached a strong line, and thus equipped he plunges in and and thus equipped he plunges in and quickly reaches the bottom. Instantly opening the bag over the streng jet of water, he springs up the ascending current, at the same time closing the bag, and is helped aboard. The stone is then hauled up, and the diver, after taking breath, plunges again. The source of the copious submarine springs is thought to be in the green hills of Osman, some five or six hundred miles distant.

The importance assumed by the electrical science in the present day is shown by the increasing number of serial pub-lications devoted to it. The recent appearance in Munich of a monthly journal of applied electricity raises to nine the of applied electricity raises to hime the number of journals now dealing exten-sively with electrical science. Two such publications exist in this country and three in England.—[Boston Journal.

A BADLY-USED GROOM.

[Cincinnati Enquirer.]

A bridal couple from one of our neighboring towns, recently married, went to the thriving city of Springfield, Ohio, on their bridal tour. They arrived at the Lagonda House, in that place, about nine o'clock in the evening. The bride waited in the ladies' reception-room while her liege lord went to the office to register his name, and for the first time to write with it "and wife." The polite clerk was notified of the fact that he was a fresh and newly-married man, and the bridal chamber was accordingly assigned them. The groom retired from the of-fice, accompanied by a servant, and with his bonnie bride repaired to the bridai-room. In about half an hour the affable clerk at the Lagonda was surprised to see the groom walking in the effice, and still more surprised to notice that he deliber-ately walked to an easy chair, in a dark corner and seated himself with a disap-pointed but determined sort of an air. The clerk waited some minutes, all the time wondering if there could so soon be a family row. He watched the young husband clesely, endeavoring to discover by his actions the cause of his so suddenly and so soon retiring from the chamber which contained his fair young bride. But his watching was in vain. There sat the groom in the shadow of a pillar, quiet and calm. Finally, the clerk's curiosity became so great that he determined to interview the young man about the matter. Approaching him in a respectful manner, he said:

a respectful manner, he said:

"My friend, pardon me, but I don't understand why you have so soon left the bridal chamber. Has anything serious happened?"

"Oh, no," said the young fellow.

"Jennie is an awful modest girl, and she said that she couldn't retire as long as I was in the room. I told her she would have to get used to it sooner or later, and might as well commence the first night. But she said no, and plead se hard, and with such love looks, that I couldn't refuse her, and at her request left the room and came down."

"Well, what are you going to do?" said the curious clerk. "You den't propose to sit here all night, de you?"
"No, siree! You bet I den't. Jennie promised that as soon as she got un-dressed she would turn the gas low and then ring the bell. As soon as I heard it I was to go up to my room. I will sit here, and if you will please tell me when here, and if you will please tell me when the bell to my room rings I will be obliged, and will go up."

"All right," said the amused clerk; "when your bell rings I'll tell you," and so saying he left the newly-made husband. Time rolled on, and an hour passed. The young fellow anxiously came to the desk and inquried over and over again if "his hell hade tenne." over again if "his bell hadn,t rung," and when the answer came, "No, sir!" he looked troubled and auxious. Finally he settled himself in an easy chair, and soon the clerk heard his sonerous snores The night passed and daylight came, but the bell of the bridal-chamber had not so much as tinkled once all night. At six o'clock the daylight clerk came on duty, and the groom, who was sleep-ing soundly, was awakened. He rubbed his eyes, yawned and stretched himself, and in a confused manner, exclaimed Where am I?"

Then recollecting the condition of affairs he angirly said, "Look'ee here, you Mr. Clerk, why in the devil didn't, you wake me up when that 'ar bell rang?"

Well, sir, it didn't ring."

"Didn't ring?" "No, sir."
"Not once?"

"What! not once during the whole night?" " No." "Well, that is darned strange. By gosh, I don't understand this business.

I'll go to the room and see Jennie, and find out what the devil she means keeping me down here all night," and off he

About twelve e'cleck he entered the dining-room' with bright-eyed Jennie on his arm, and they sat down to dinner. After the repast Jennie went to her room, and her handsome and now happy husband repaired to the office to explain husband repaired to the office to explain things to the clerk.

"Look'e here," said he, in a confidental tone, "don't say anything about this to any one, for Jennie feels awful bad about it; but the truth is, she went to turn the gas down low and turned it out. This frightened her so that she jumped into bed and pulled the covers over her head, and was afraid to get up jumped into bed and pulled the covers over her head, and was afraid to get up again to ring the bell; and, besides, didn't know where the bell was. She said she thought I'd come every minute, and waited and waited until she fell asleep. Poor girl, she nearly cried her eyes out about it. I didn't like it much at first, but then she felt so awfully sorry and was so sweet and nice, and made it all right, you know; so I don't blame her at all. She said I needn't leave the room to-night, and I don't propose to either, you bet."

A shocking case of neglect has just come to light in Hull, near Ottawa, On-tario. A youth of seventeen years was tario. A youth of seventeen years was taken down with small-pox, and his family deserted him. The neighbors hearing of it, went to the house with a bowl of sunp, and on entering the room, found the yeath covered with blood and almost at the point of death. Seup being placed to his lips, he ravenously swallowed it. An examination showed that he had eaten the flush from one of his arms in his agony of hunger. He died in a few minutes after the arrival of the neighbors, MISCELLANEOUS.
